-Gold closed at New York yesterday at 41j. -At New York yesterday the cotton market opened dull and a shade lower, but closed more steady; sales 4000 bales at 241a25c, closing at

The Liverpool cotton market yesterday closed irregular at about 9id on the spot for Uplands, and 91d to 91d to arrive; sales 1000 bales. Manchester firm. -Bankruptcy flourishes in Montgomery, Ala. On last Saturday alone two hundred applications were filed. -A municipal election was held in Lock-haven, Pa., on Friday. The Democrats carried all the wards. -Hon. John E. Ward is lecturing on China, in the Georgia cities, in behalf of the fund for the support of the widow of the late Bishop

-In New York city, during the past year, the various passenger railways carried 100,-067,249 passengers-an increase of nearly a million over the number or ried the preceding

-Mr. Murdoch is advertised to give a series of readings in Chicago for the benefit of Mrs. Dickens, a poor widow in that city, and sisterin-law of Charles Dickens, whose writings abound in benevolent characters and openhanded charities. This is rather rough on

-A Savannah letter, alluding to the recent rise in cotton, says: "More than one firm prides itself on having made a neat piece of trade during the short-lived upward flight. One house, that of Moses & Brady, are said to have netted fifty thousand dollars by the sudden rise." -In order to add to the present stock of light literature, it is proposed in London, and is meeting with favor, to establish a society to translate into Euglish and print the best stories, from nations and languages hitherto disregarded, including Norse, Persian and Hindoo tales, and Magyar and Finnish legends.

There is some speculation as to the length of time that will be allowed the President to prepare for trial, after settling the preliminaries and notification has been served. The general impression is that he will get from ten to twenty days to arrange his defence. Meantime the two houses will proceed with their regular legislative business. It is announced that in England, whilst the poor marry, the well-to-do avoid marriage to such an extent that two women in every five of the whole number of English women are unmarried, and the total of these unmarried amounts to the great number of 1,527,000. In London, forty-one per cent. of the women of marriageable age are spinsters, and in five ville on the morning of the 4th instant, burning the bakery of Mrs. Haug, on Wayne-street, jewelry store of Mr. James Supple, the millinery establishment of Mrs. Leikins, the barber shop on the northwestern corner of Wayne and Green streets, the jewelry store of Mr. Miller, the confectionery establishment of Mr. Conn (which was also the office of the Southern Express Company), and Mr. Haug's shoe store.

-Gen. J. B. Steadman publishes a card in the New Orleans Crescent, in which he says: "As I understand there are some citizens who do believe that I entertain sympathy with General Grant, I deem it due to myself to say that I am as strongly opposed to the political views and action of General Grant as any man in Louisiana. The usurpations of Congress, sustained by General Grant, are as abhorrent to me as they are to the great body of the conservative people of America, and I most carnestly hope that both he and Congress may be defeated in their attempts to trample upon the constitution and usurp the government."

-It is known that a very considerable amount of Confederate money, including some cash balances in Liverpool, were attached by the United States Government in England, but some of the principal witnesses having been personally implicated in secession, and their estates, if any, on this side, liable to confiscation, the English Vice-Chancellor decided that they could not be compelled to testify where it would criminate themselves. To remedy this obstruction, so as to make full discovery and surrender of the "Confederate property" abroad, Congress has just passed an act of indemnity in certain cases, to relieve the common law disability referred to.

-The editor of the Petersburg Index tele graphs from Washington to his paper as follows : "The universal opinion among those best informed here is that the deposition of Mr. Johnson is already a fixed fact. The impeachers are very bitter in their expressions, and announce the determination to finish the job cut out for the Senate with all possible dispatch." This coincides with the statements of all the best-informed Washington correspondents. Whence those who find in impeachment nothing but a good joke derive their information we cannot imagine. If some unexpected turn is not given to the trial, Mr. Johnson might as well prepare to give place in a short time to old Ben Wade. -As a new social experiment for London, a newspaper of that city announces that in the fashionable part of the town, in a row of buildings called "Belgrave Mansions," on Lord Westminster's estate, the rooms are to be let singly or in suites as unfurnished apartments, each tenant furnishing them as he pleases. A company provides all necessary servants, and there is a coffee room for the use of the tenants. There is no obligation, implied or understood, that the tenants should take their meals in the house; they are free to live as they like, and can procure their wine, tea, coffee, and everything else wherever they choose-in short, it is proposed that they shall enjoy as much privacy and independence as if they were in houses of their own. It is believed the London club system is capable of useful development in this direction, and the experiment is regarded with cur osity. -The Cincinnati Commercial unqualifiedly sustains the President's position. It savs: "It is difficult to see how, at this time, he could have proceeded in any other way. Denying the constitutionality of the law of Congress, he issues an order removing Stauton, appoints his cot ripen and glow, and the eastern slopes of successor, and that successor having reported the resistance of the incumbent to his demand to surrender the office, the President appeals to the courts for a decision that will be final and binding upon timself and Congress. Now, if Mr. Johnson stops here; if he does not proceed to extremes and eject Stanton by force; if he is content to abide the decision of the court, and shape his official action by the decision when it shall have been rendered, we repeat that we do not see wherein he has committed a high crime or misdemeanor for which he is alone indictable. We suppose the fact of his being President does not deprive him of his rights as a private citizen, and yet there is no citizen who may not, under given circumstances, go into the courts of law for a decieither of Congress or a State legislature."

CHARLESTON.

SATURDAY MORNING, MARCH 7, 1868.

Impeachment-The Result. It is impossible to read the Northern newspapers of all shades of political opinion, without reaching the conclusion that the approaching trial of the President will be practically a monstrous sham; that his conviction by the Senate is a foregone conclusion, and that his early removal from the Presidential office is little less than a cerfainty. In this anticipation of the result, the leading Radical and Democratic journals seem to agree; the difference in their views being only as to the justice of deposing Mr. Johnson, and the probable effect of so high handed a measure upon the popular sentiment of the country. The Republicans of all degrees of Radicalism are now a unit in favor of getting rid of the President in the most summary fashion possible. There may be, here and there, a little hesitancy and faltering as to the means; but the end is recognized by all as a supreme party necessity. A striking evidence of this feeling is given in some remarks of the Albany Evening Post, one of 'the most influential Republican papers in the State of New York. It says:

"The Washington correspondents en-"deavor to create the impression that there "is a weakening of the senatorial vertebræ, "from fear that the beople will not sustain "impeachment. We do not believe that any "such cowardly spirit prevails; but if it does "let the trembling souls contemplate the "alternative, as presented by the Union, that "the 'malicious prosecutors' in the House of "Representatives will be the ones aimed at "in the Presidential canvass. And with "reason, too. If the Republican members of "Congress unanimously impeach the President, "and a Republican Senate acquit him of the "charge, the fact furnishes the Democracy a most "available argument in proving either the incom-"petency of the House or Senate, or both. THE "RUBICON IS PASSED. There is no salvation in retreat. Forward is victory; retreat is "disaster. A demoralized army, with a haras-"sing enemy on its flanks and rear, will be "the result. Onward, then!"

Such is the spirit in which ANDREW JOHN son is to be arraigned and tried.

Stay at Home.

A roving disposition comes natural to Americans, by inheritance from the old colonists. And the spirit of the pioneer has been stimulated by the romance of Indian adventure, the wild freedom of the in hunting ground, and the richness and the English counties there are forty-five per cent. cheapness of the virgin soil lying westward -A destructive fire took place in Milledge- of the older settlements. Among us, at present, local associations have been broken the unsettled condition of the country. and the apprehension of the rule of a so recently servile race. Hence the stampede to Mexico, to British Honduras, to Brazil, to the North, and even to those border States which are in danger of being crushed between the upper and nether millstones of Radicalism. A mariner, weary of stemming the river current and buffeting the waves of ocean, might just as wisely cast anchor upon the breakers on the bar ! Our country presents a singular spectacle. People of all other lands are seeking this. The Irish are gradually assuming control of the cities of New England which ere long may be an ally of the South; while the sons of the soil are flocking away in a mixed concourse of foreign emigrants to the West. With less wisdom the people of South Carolina are, many of them, rushing away from the State, at the very moment when such resources are being developed as urgently invite immigration, and as will in a few decades, crowd sea island, plain and mountain with a various population of Irish, Scotch, English, Germans, Danes, Swedes and Norwegians-such resources as will fill every wasted pulse of the body politic with a current of new and vigorous life-such resources as by the blessing of Heaven will restore to us all our prosperity. We are not afraid to indulge in such expectations. We are sure that our present difficulties will be overcome. Our disordered society will be composed; our shattered and prostrate industries repaired. We look beyond the immediate effects of the act of emancipation so suddenly and revengefully effected, and so injurious to both races at the South. We look beyond a few years of excitement, disorder and distress, and confidently predict the era of thrifty labor and general abundance.

An article from the "Soldier's Friend" inviting the veterans of the Federal army to settle in our State, well exhibits the advantages voluntarily renounced by shose of our people who exile themselves to other lands. The writer calls upon the Northern people to observe how amply nature has done her part here. And what should induce the Northern laborer or capitalist to come, should surely induce the South Carolina proprietor to stay. The latter also may wisely observe the water powers that now waste their strength among our mountains. His is the abundance of the gold, iron, copper, manganese that crop out among the rocks and sparkle in the sands. His are those rich clays and othres that vein the hillsides with suggestions to enterprise and the forests that abound with the choicest American woods. For him the native vines of wonderful luxuriance display their juicy clusters among the trees. His are the favored localities where the fig, the olive, the pecan and the almond grow, the table-lands where the peach, the rectarine and the apri-

the Blue Ridge overspread with the finest wheat in the world. His are the sea islands famous for the finest cotton, and where with little labor the early vegetables for the Northern markets, now imported in immense quantities from Bermuda, can be raised. His are the living waters, swarming at all seasons with fish, and the sand beaches where the sea-turtle lays its eggs. The very swamps he cannot cultivate are draped with valuable mosses; and where the lands were worn out along the coast, an immense layer of richest phosphates has been just discovered extending from the Waccamaw southward as far as the Saltillo sion upon the constitutionality of any law. This fertilizer is more valuable than guano and is well nigh inexhaustible; and above all it can be sold at a cheaper rate than any other. We are speaking considerately and soberly when we predict that this one discovery will give us in ten years a larger commerce and a more crowded population than Charleston ever enjoyed.

Under such mircumstances what moon struck madness is driving worthy citizens of South Carolina away from their native State. After they have sacrificed everything to effect a removal, can they find a better country to settle in than that where they now reside? .
